I stopped by Cudos Lounge to see a full house for Audio/Rocketry as well as Calgary punk band Rumrunner. They were in the middle of major technical issues, but the crowd was pretty patient.

Audio/Rocketry played an upbeat set of original folk rock music which had the crowd hopping.

Because of the technical difficulties, Rumrunner didn't start until past midnight.

The lead singer called the show a "litmus test" for punk shows in Lethbridge and asked the crowd to show some respect for each other and the facility so there could be more.

Despite the technical difficulties, they sounded great. They had a lot of up beat, Celtic tinged
