If you like old school Canadian punk and endless energy with a lot of humour. SNFU is coming to Lethbridge for a June 21 performance at Bully's Entertainment Centre.

Having seen them several times including a mind melting show at the University of Lethbridge's Zoo many moons ago, I can tell you they are not to be missed. Get your tickets by calling Amp All productions at 403-327-7362 for $15. Also in June, Amp All is bringing Incura back to Lethbridge to play the Moose Hall, June 26.

This week though there are a couple impressive shows. On May 1, Kory Istace and the Time Pirates return to the Slice to play with blues band Smoke Stack Jacks and the Co-Accused. On the other hand, if you like the rap music, Classified plays the Blarney Stone, May 1 as well.

And for big name country acts, check out The Road Hammers and Montgomery Gentry, who will be tearing up the Enmax, May 5.

Further down the road, on May 28, violin aficionados will love a show featuring Ed Dietrich and Murray Nelson who will be performing guitar and fiddle tunes many in the style of the "Hot Club of France".

As well Shaela Miller will be performing tunes both her own and covers with Brad Brouwer (drums) Tyler Bird (bass) along with Murray, Ed and Andrew Dexter. Andrew Dexter and Ed have done some two violin shows in Southern Alberta. Tickets cost $20 in advance, $25 at the door to hear some top calibre violin playing.
